

THE HUMANE SOCIETY OF THE UNITED STATES

Eric L. Bernstein, Esq.
Chair of the Board

Jennifer Lanning, M.D., S.M.H.
Vice Chair

Jason Vinters
Second Vice Chair

Kathleen M. Loshan, Esq.
Board Treasurer

Wayne Pacella
President & CEO

Michael McGowan
Chief Program & Policy Officer

Linda Mahoney
Chief Operating Officer

G. Thomas Wake III
Executive & CFO

Archives M. Rowan, Ph.D.
Chief International Officer
& Chief Scientific Officer

Robert A. Kinder
General Counsel
Vice President & CLO

Amy C. Rodriguez
Secretary

DIRECTORS

Jeffrey L. Archibald
Eric L. Bernstein, Esq.
Jory Cassin
James Coster
Antonia M. Coupe, Esq.
Neil G. Ferguson, Esq., CPA
Jane Greenstein, Esq.
Cathy Harpoot
Paula A. Kelsk, DVM
Jennifer Lanning, M.D., S.M.H.
Kathleen M. Loshan, Esq.
John Macleay
Margaret May
Patrick L. McDunnell
Judy Noy
Sharon Lee Patrick
Judy J. Peck
Marianne G. Probst
Jonathan M. Rafter
Joshua S. Reichert, Ph.D.
William J. Rowan, Esq.
Andrew Weinstein
James Wake
David O. Waters, M.D.
Linda Williams

February 18, 2014

Joint Committee on Children
Room 011, Capitol Building
Hartford, CT 06106
Phone: 860-240-0370
KID.Testimony@cga.ct.gov

Dear Co-Chair Urban, Co-Chair Bartolomeo, and Honorable Members of the Children's Committee,

On behalf of the Connecticut supporters of The Humane Society of the United States (HSUS), I submit this letter in support of HB 5037, An Act Concerning Cross Reporting of Child Abuse and Animal Cruelty, which fine tunes the cross-reporting legislation that passed in 2011.

Research has established that there are strong links between violent behaviors toward humans and violent behaviors toward animals.

• The connection between animal abuse and criminal violence

A number of studies have drawn links between the abuse of animals and violence against people. A 2001-2004 study by the Chicago Police Department "revealed a startling propensity for offenders charged with crimes against animals to commit other violent offenses toward human victims." Of those arrested for animal crimes, 65% had been arrested for battery against another person.<sup>1</sup>

Of 36 convicted multiple murderers questioned in one study, 46% admitted committing acts of animal torture as adolescents.<sup>2</sup> And of seven school shootings that took place across the country between 1997 and 2001, all involved boys who had previously committed acts of animal cruelty.

• The connection between animal abuse and domestic abuse

Pet abuse is one of four predictors of domestic partner violence, according to a six-year "gold standard" study conducted in 11 metropolitan cities.<sup>3</sup> In both domestic violence and child-abuse situations, abusers may manipulate and control their human victims through threatened or actual violence against

Celebrating Animals | Confronting Cruelty

2100 L Street, NW Washington, DC 20037 t 202.452.1100 f 202.378.5132 humane@society.org

family pets.

Researchers have found that over 70% of women entering domestic violence shelters reported that their partners had threatened, abused, or killed the family pet.<sup>4</sup> Another study found that in families under supervision for physical abuse of their children, pet abuse was concurrent in 88% of the families.<sup>5</sup>

- Animal neglect can be an indicator of abuse toward people

Animal abuse in the form of neglect is often one of the first indicators of distress in the household. Whether owing to lack of empathy, mental illness, or substance abuse, a person who fails to provide minimal care for the family pet is more likely to neglect the basic needs of other dependents in the household. In many cases, children found living among the squalor of neglected pets are taken into foster care.

Animal hoarding is an extreme example of how life-threatening neglect affects both people and animals. By the time an animal hoarding situation is discovered, the unsanitary conditions and lack of care may have killed a large number of the animals and compromised the health of dependent children or elders in the household.

- Animal abuse by children is a warning sign

Children who abuse animals are sending out clear warning signs that they pose a risk to themselves as well as to others. The National School Safety Council, the U.S. Department of Education, the American Psychological Association, and the National Crime Prevention Council agree that animal cruelty is a warning sign for at-risk youth.<sup>6</sup>

Longitudinal studies show that chronic physical aggression (e.g., animal cruelty) by elementary school boys increases the likelihood they will commit continued physical violence as well as other nonviolent forms of delinquency during adolescence.<sup>7</sup>

A child who abuses animals may also be acting out against violence in his own home.<sup>8</sup> Professional intervention can remove a child from a potentially abusive situation and divert him or her from future abusive behavior.

Experts agree that early prevention and treatment of animal cruelty is the key to stopping the cycle of violence, because as aggressive children get older, they are less responsive to therapeutic intervention.<sup>9</sup> Animal cruelty in children should not be taken lightly. Children who abuse animals should receive immediate professional psychological intervention for both their own welfare and that of the community.

- Stopping animal abuse strengthens our communities

Reporting, investigating, and prosecuting animal cruelty can help take dangerous criminals off the streets. Police know that in homes where animal abuse is a problem, other issues are often concurrent. Acts of animal cruelty are linked to a variety of other crimes, including violence against people, property crimes, and drug or disorderly conduct offenses.<sup>10</sup> Stopping animal abuse in children can help curb violent tendencies before they escalate to include violence against people.

More than a dozen states, including Connecticut, have cross-reporting laws; at least two dozen states have laws, including Connecticut, allow courts to include pets in protection orders in domestic violence situations; and at least two dozen states, including Connecticut, have counseling provisions in their animal cruelty laws.<sup>11,12,13</sup>

The mission of The Humane Society of the United States (HSUS) is to create a humane and sustainable world for all animals—a world that will also benefit people. We believe that teaching humans to behave with kindness and respect toward animals will help build a more humane and better functioning civil society.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Yours truly,

Annie Hornish

Connecticut State Director

The Humane Society of the United States

Cell: (860) 966-5201 Email: ahornish@humanesociety.org

References

1. Degenhardt, B. 2005. Statistical Summary of Offenders Charged with Crimes against Companion Animals July 2001-July 2005. Report from the Chicago Police Department.
2. Cohen, W. (1996). Congressional Register, 142(141), Oct. 3.
3. Walton-Moss, B. J., Manganello, J., Frye, V., & Campbell, J. C. (2005). "Risk factors for intimate partner violence and associated injury among urban women." Journal of Community Health, 30(5), 377–389.
4. Ascione, F., Weber, C., & Wood D (1997). "Animal Welfare and Domestic Violence". Utah State University, Logan, Utah. Originally submitted to The Geraldine R. Dodge Foundation.
5. DeViney, E., Dickert, J., & Lockwood, R. (1983). "The care of pets within child abusing families." International Journal for the Study of Animal Problems, 4, 3321–3329.
6. Randour, M. L. (2004). "Including animal cruelty as a factor in assessing risk and designing interventions." Conference Proceedings, Persistently Safe Schools, The National Conference of the Hamilton Fish Institute on School and Community Violence, Washington, D.C.
7. Broidy, L. M., Nagin, D. S., Tremblay, R. E., Bates, J. E., Brame, B., Dodge, K., Fergusson, D., Horwood, J., Loeber, R., Laird, R., Lynam, D., Moffitt, T., Pettit, G. S., & Vitario, F. (2003). "Developmental trajectories of childhood disruptive behaviors and adolescent delinquency: A six site cross national replication." Development and Psychopathology, 39(2), 222–245.

8. Randour, M. L., & Davidson, H. (2008). A Common Bond: Maltreated Children and Animals in the Home: Guidelines for Practice and Policy. The Humane Society of the United States: Washington, D.C.
9. Kazdin, A. E. (1995). Conduct Disorder in Childhood and Adolescence (2nd ed.). Sage: Thousand Oaks, Calif. and Loeber, R. (1990). "Development and risk factors in juvenile anti-social behavior and delinquency." Clinical Psychology Review, 10, 1-42.
10. Arluke, A., & Lockwood, R. (Eds.). (1997). Society & Animals, Special Theme Issue: Animal Cruelty, 5(3). Society & Animals Forum (formerly Psychologists for the Ethical Treatment of Animals): Washington Grove, Md. 301-963-4751.
11. The Humane Society of the United States. (2008). First Strike: The Violence Connection.
12. Ramsey, S., Randour, M.L., & Gupta, M. (2010). "Protecting Domestic Violence Victims by Protecting Their Pets." Juvenile and Family Justice Today 19(2), 16-20.
13. The Humane Society of the United States, 2008.